NEW YORK, Oct. 3 .- The death list ter when a boatload of sailors, returning to ship from shore leave, foundered off 157th street in North river Saturday night, was swelled today by a report that seven bodies had been picked up and taken aboard the hospital ship Solace, making thirty-six known dead and five still missing.

All night long and through the

All night long and through the morning the fleet and police patrol boats used every method in the attempt to locate other dead bodies in the Hudson Twenty-nine bodies were recov ered, and it was ascertained by checkoff the names of the sailors on the battleship New Hampshire that twelve

In hope that the twelve had overstayed their shore leave, detachments of sailors were sent ashore in the attempt to round up some of the missing men. arly reports were that the search had been futile and the gloom despened on the great war fleet.

The searchlights of the battleships in the river flashed through the hours of the night, marking the path for police and battlephi and battleship patrols in their quest for the dead. Heavy nets and grappling hooks were used and other boats were stationed off the Statue of Liberty and Governor's Island, in case the tide carrled the bodies out of the river and into

Chevaller is the hero of the fleet to

"Chevaller is the hero of the fleet today," said one of the officers of the New Hampshire. "The men who were serving under him when the accident happened swear by him, declaring that when they finally had to use force to prevent him from plunging back irto
the river, fainting from exhaustion, he had already saved twenty jackies."
The best theory of the cause of the disaster so far put forth is that when the launch started for the battleship the rudder of the whaleboat was not thrown far enough over. The result was that the launch pulled the head of the whaleboat sideways, and it tipped enough so that the water flowed in.
Another theory is that the boat may have struck a piece of floating wreckage, which acted as a drag, and pushed its nose under.

President Bishop Expects Early Adjustment of W. B. and A. Railroad Affairs.

Potomac Electric Consolidated bonds nd Railway 4's were the feature of the trading on the local exchange. Demand for them appeared after call, and the former sold at 100% and the latter at 33% and 83%.

The preferred stock of the Washington Railway Company also figured in the dealings after call, selling at 88. Lanston sold at 84, about fifty shares Capital Traction stock sold at 129, and small bond sold at 114.

President George Bishop, of Cleveland, s optimistic about the early adjustment of the affairs of the Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis Railroad Com-timore and Annapolis Railroad Company. He expects the committee having charge of the reorganization affairs of the company to report soon, and expects this report to pave the way to dissolving the receivership. In an interview last Saturday Mr. Bishop said:

"After consultations with many of the largest security holders, it was decided the committee should consist of men having an actual pecuniary interest in the properties, among whom all classes of securities are represented.

"The committee believes that no important obstacle to an early and satisfactory adjustment of the company's affairs exists. The prompt co-operation of holders of the several classes of securities by a deposit of them with the depositaries would greatly facthitate the work of the committee in accomplishing a speedy reorganization, with the consequent resumption of the payment of interest, which the company ardently desires.

"The receivers believe there is no good reason to further prolong the receivership."
